Davis Whitfield To Be New NCHSAA Executive Director

CHAPEL HILL—Norm Lowenthal, director of the William and Ida Friday Center for Continuing Education at the University of North Carolina, has announced that Davis Whitfield has been selected as the next executive director of the North Carolina High School Athletic Association.

Lowenthal made the appointment after a university committee did the search and screening. The NCHSAA has been part of the university since 1913.

Whitfield will succeed Charlie Adams, who has been executive director of the NCHSAA since 1984 and with the Association since 1967. Adams has announced his retirement at the end of January in 2010.

Whitfield, 39, is currently the associate commissioner of the Atlantic Coast Conference, whose offices are in Greensboro, and has been with the ACC for the last seven years. There he has served on the commissioner's executive staff and manages 22 sports and 21 conference championship events, providing oversight of all aspects of the Olympic sports regular season. Among his duties are developing multi-year schedules, addressing sportsmanship issues and enforcing conference game management policies.

He served as the NCAA site representative for the NCAA women's soccer and baseball championships. He also represented the conference at local, regional and state events and worked with ACC corporate partners to create and provide exposure opportunities.

Prior to joining the ACC office, he was assistant athletic director for operations and facilities management at Wake Forest University, where he worked for four years. At Wake Forest he managed all home athletic contests for 18 varsity sports as well as all special events and concerts. He held a similar position at Campbell University from 1995 through '98.

He worked at the 1996 Summer Olympic Games in Atlanta as assistant to the competition manager for baseball, assisting delegates of the International Baseball Association and assisting with scheduling team practices and crowd control.

Whitfield attended East Carolina University from 1988 through '91, where he was a dean's list student and a member of the varsity baseball team, and then transferred to the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, earning his bachelor of arts in exercise and sports science in 1993. He also has a master's degree in sports administration from UNC.

A native of Goldsboro and a graduate of Rosewood High School in Wayne County, Whitfield was inducted into the charter class of the school's sports hall of fame in the fall of 2007.

DAVIS WHITFIELD

Whitfield, his wife, the former Nicole Torode from Florida, and two children, Will (almost age 5) and Sydney Grace (almost 2) currently reside in Jamestown.

"Davis is an excellent selection as the next executive director of the North Carolina High School Athletic Association," said ACC Commissioner John Swofford. "His enthusiasm, energy and values are among the many qualities that make Davis a talented administrator and leader." ★

Seven Named To Join NCHSAA Hall of Fame

CHAPEL HILL—Seven more outstanding names in the annals of state prep athletics have been selected for induction into the North Carolina High School Athletic Association Hall of Fame.

Brad Faircloth of Greensboro, Gilbert Ferrell of Wilson, Bruce Hardin of Charlotte, Jim Maxwell of Durham, Vickie Peoples of Raleigh, Pete Stout of Salisbury and Carolyn Shannonhouse of Cary have been named as the 23rd group of inductees to join the prestigious hall. That brings to 125 the number enshrined.

The new inductees were honored during special halftime ceremonies at a football game at Kenan Stadium in November when North Carolina battled Miami. The University of North Carolina designated the day as the 25th annual NCHSAA Day. The new class will officially be inducted at the special Hall of Fame banquet next spring at the George Watts Hill Alumni Center at the University of North Carolina.

The NCHSAA Hall of Fame is supported by a special grant from GlaxoSmithKline.

"These individuals joining the Association Hall of Fame this year have definitely had a tremendous impact on high school athletics across North Carolina," says NCHSAA associate executive director Rick Strunk, who coordinates the Hall for the Association. "Their records are certainly impressive, but the character they exemplified and the lives they touched are really representative of what the NCHSAA stands for. Their selection maintains the high standards of excellence established by previous inductees, and we are proud to honor these deserving individuals."

Brad Faircloth

Bradley Faircloth is one of the top officials that North Carolina has ever produced.

A graduate of Greensboro Senior (now Grimsley) High School and Duke University, for almost 20 years Faircloth worked as the coordinator of football officials and chief financial officer for the Atlantic Coast Conference. But he also enjoyed an outstanding career as a high school official, working NCHSAA championship games in football, basketball and baseball as well as the 1965 Shrine Bowl of the Carolinas. As a college football official he worked seven bowl games, including the 1982 Cotton Bowl.

He received a Distinguished Service Award from the NCHSAA in 1995 and a year later was inducted into the National Football Foundation and College Hall of Fame.

Faircloth has also been very involved with civic and church activities in the Greensboro area, including once serving as general chairman of the Greater Greensboro Open golf tournament.

Gilbert Ferrell

Gilbert Ferrell enjoyed a stellar 38-year career as a teacher, coach, and athletic administrator.

Born in Wilson, he was a graduate of Charles Coon High School there and then graduated from Atlantic Christian College. He spent the bulk of his career in Wilson County, including 20 years as head baseball coach at Wilson Fike, during which his team won the state 4-A title in 1968 and a total of 215 games, and 13 years as athletic director there.

From 1978 through '94, he was athletic director for the Wilson County school system. He served as president of the North Carolina Athletic Directors Association in 1978 and twice was named the state's Athletic Director of the Year.

Gilbert is a member of the Fike Senior High School Hall of Fame, the Barton College Hall of Fame and the NCADA Hall of Fame. He has also received numerous awards and recognition from the NCHSAA.

Bruce Hardin

Bruce Hardin has been a very successful football coach at both the high school and collegiate level.

A graduate of Chase High School who earned his undergraduate degree at Appalachian State, Hardin's teams have earned two state football titles and three runner-up finishes in 27 years as a high school head coach. Most recently he has been the head coach at Marvin Ridge High School, but he has also served as Charlotte Providence (2001-03), Kannapolis A.L. Brown (1989-2000), West Charlotte (1980-89) and Charlotte Harding (1977-80), after serving as an assistant coach at Charlotte Olympic for 10 years.

He also served as an assistant coach at The Citadel and at the United States Military Academy, the latter from 2003-07.

Bruce was a head coach in both the North Carolina Coaches Association East-West game and the Shrine Bowl. He also was recognized by the NCHSAA with both coach of the year and athletic director of the year awards at various times.

Jim Maxwell

Jim Maxwell has made significant contributions to high school athletics in a couple of different ways.

A native of Hampton, Va., Jim attended Randolph-Macon College and then the Duke University School of Law. He has been the NCHSAA's legal counsel for many years. But he has also achieved fame as one of the top swimming coaches our state has ever had.

Maxwell was the volunteer head coach at Durham Jordan throughout his 29-year coaching career, coaching both the men's and women's teams.

NCHSAA Hall of Famers

The newest class of inductees into the North Carolina High School Athletic Association Hall of Fame was recognized at NCHSAA Day at Kenan Stadium. They include, from left: Brad Faircloth, Gilbert Ferrell, Bruce Hardin, Jim Maxwell, Vickie Peoples, Carolyn Shannonhouse and Pete Stout.

His squads earned five state championships and finished as state runners-up an additional eight times. He directed a regional swimming and diving championship for 19 years and the state meet for 15.

In addition, the veteran coach served as chairman of the National Federation Swimming and Diving Rules Committee for four years after three years as a committee member.

Vickie Peoples

Vickie Peoples was an outstanding high school athlete in Iowa who really made her mark as a coach in North Carolina.

Peoples was an Iowa high school state finalist in swimming and diving and then a Big Eight gymnastics champion at Iowa State. But it is her stellar career as both the men's and women's swimming and diving coach at Raleigh Enloe from 1982 to 2007 that propelled her to the Hall.

Her men's swimming teams won a total of nine NCHSAA state championships, all in succession. The Eagles also captured 18 regional crowns and 27 conference titles under her tutelage. She served as the director of the Eastern Regional in swimming and diving for 20 years. She was Teacher of the Year at Enloe in the 2004-05 academic year.

The City of Raleigh proclaimed May 1, 2007, as Enloe Swimming and Diving Day in her honor.

Pete Stout

Pete Stout was a very successful high school football coach before he returned to his college alma mater to coach there.

Prior to his coaching at Catawba from 1983 to '86, where he was a four-year letterwinner in football and basketball during his playing days, Stout had stints at Altamahaw, Western Alamance, Salisbury Boyden, Burlington Williams and Morganton Freedom High Schools. In 28 years as a head coach in high school he rolled up a record of 234-63-14 with two NCHSAA state 3-A championships and a pair of runner-up finishes. At Burlington Williams his teams compiled a then-state record of 43 consecutive wins.

Stout is a member of the Rowan County Sports Hall of Fame and the Catawba College Sports Hall of Fame. He was born in Alamance County and attended Haw River High School.

Carolyn Shannonhouse

Carolyn Shannonhouse compiled an outstanding record as a coach but has been instrumental in the growth of women's sports as assistant executive director of the NCHSAA since July of 1986.

Carolyn grew up in southeastern Virginia and attended Madison College (now James Madison University). She taught and coached in Virginia for six years before moving to Wake County, where she coached at Broughton for a year and then at Cary, serving as head coach in both women's tennis and women's basketball, for eight years.

In her role with the NCHSAA, she supervises the women's sports and combination (those sports played by both men and women, such as soccer or tennis) as well as the invitational cheerleading championships, interpreting playing rules and eligibility. She has also held important roles at the national level, serving on a couple of National Federation sports rules committees.

The Hall of Fame plaques are on permanent display in the North Carolina High School Athletic Association's Hall of Fame room, located in the Simon F. Terrell Building in Chapel Hill that houses the Association offices. ★

Keeping Perspective Is Right On Target For High School Athletics

Editor's Note: this column first appeared in the Goldsboro News-Argus sports section on Thursday, October 22, 2009, but the message that sports editor Rudy Coggins writes about is timeless. We thought it was so well done that we are pleased to reprint this column from that paper with permission, and we believe that readers of the NCHSAA Bulletin will appreciate...its perspective.

Sad faces and soulful, piercing eyes from his players greeted Charles B. Aycock football coach Randy Pinkowski as he stepped into the post-game huddle after a heart-breaking loss to South Johnston on Friday evening.

And the speech Pinkowski delivered was endearing.

The veteran coach didn't deliver a negative comment. Instead, he reminded the players that "mama was going to cook 'em breakfast the next day, they were going to look in the mirror and still see good-looking 16- and 17-year-old men and they had their whole life in front of them."

Pinkowski's message made me think driving home.

He's right.

We have to remember that teen-agers are teen-agers. They're not perfect and they're going to make mistakes. That's a fact of life.

Too many times we get caught up in the heat of the moment and let words spew from our lips before our brain processes what we're going to say. A coach, parent, mentor or friend should not overly criticize, but offer a constructive review—in positive fashion—over what just happened.

Sports is not life and death. It is, indeed, a valuable tool that teaches responsibility, discipline and how to work together as a team. You need those characteristics to live your every day life at either home, work or school.

Sometimes that slips our mind.

In 20-plus seasons of covering sports on the high school and collegiate levels, I cringe when I see a coach get in a player's face and streams of insults or obscenities ... yes, obscenities ... fill the air. It's no surprise that a player hangs his or her head, walks to the end of the bench and stares into empty space.

"Dressing down" a player in front of teammates, friends and family is nothing short of embarrassing. Not every player is cut from the same cloth and not every player has the same God-given ability.

Parents put considerable trust in coaches to teach their children positive values and help cultivate self-confidence. Once that happens, the player is undoubtedly going to be productive in the classroom, on the playing field and in life in general.

A player's success should not be measured by the final score, championship trophies or rings. Instead, the player is a winner if he or she puts their heart and soul into anything they do, and draw satisfaction from the effort. ★

Charlie Adams Receives Order Of The Long Leaf Pine

Charlie Adams, long-time executive director of the North Carolina High School Athletic Association, has received the prestigious Order of the Long Leaf Pine from North Carolina governor Beverly Perdue.

The Order of the Long Leaf Pine is one of the highest honors the governor can bestow on a North Carolina citizen. The award was created in 1965 and may be presented to residents in recognition of a proven record of service or some other special achievement. The recipient receives a certificate and the privilege of proposing, at any time, the North Carolina Toast.

Adams was presented his award on behalf of the governor by Representative Verla Insko of the North Carolina General Assembly at a dinner that Adams was attending in honor of Ray Fredrick and the Bouncing Bulldogs rope skipping demonstration team in Durham, so it came as a complete surprise.

“I was shocked but certainly very honored to receive this award,” said Adams. “I am very proud to be a North Carolinian and to be able to serve in my state, so it makes this recognition very special. I thank Governor Purdue, Representative Insko and all of those who were involved with this. It was a tremendous surprise.”

The Order of the Long Leaf Pine actually confers the rank of “Ambassador Extraordinaire” for the state on the recipient. ★

Known throughout the state as a columnist covering everything from Final Fours to the Masters and a Super Bowl, Berry also covered high school events on a regular basis.

Among his final projects prior to falling ill was a fall preview section by the Enterprise that included stories on high school volleyball, soccer, tennis, cross country and women's golf teams.

STUART TRIPP

WILMINGTON—Stuart Tripp died in early September at the Cypress Pointe Rehabilitation and Health Care Center here at the age of 86.

A 1940 Ayden High graduate, Tripp then graduated from East Carolina in 1944 and went on to forge Ayden into an athletic powerhouse. He coached football, basketball and baseball there from 1946-62, and then after a one-year stint at Tarboro returned to Ayden to coach basketball from 1965-68.

His overall football mark at Ayden was 93-39-4. He was an assistant coach during a mammoth 45-game win streak there. His baseball teams compiled a 100-52 record, while in basketball his teams rolled up a 289-69 slate during his first stint and then went 72-4 in his final three years of coaching upon his return. His teams won seven conference championships in 15 years in football, six in 15 years in baseball, and 12 league titles, including a couple of state championships, in basketball.

Tripp served eight years as an elected official on the Ayden Board of Commissioners. A youth baseball facility in Ayden was constructed and named in his honor, with the money all raised from and by his former athletes.

Memorials in his honor may be directed to the Stuart Tripp Scholarship and Community Foundation, Inc. at Ayden-Grifton High School or to the Ayden Christian Church. ★

Eight Coaches Earn Homer Thompson Sportsmanship Awards From NCHSAA

CHAPEL HILL—Eight "coaches who make a difference" by virtue of their exemplary sportsmanship were honored by the North Carolina High School Athletic Association at the NCHSAA's regional meetings.

The coaches were selected for the Homer Thompson Memorial Eight Who Make a Difference award. The award is named in honor of the late Homer Thompson, the long-time Winston-Salem Parkland coach and member of the NCHSAA Hall of Fame. Each honoree received the award at his or her respective regional meeting.

"It is fitting that Homer Thompson's name be affixed to an award about coaches who make a difference," says NCHSAA executive director Charlie Adams, "for Homer certainly did make a difference in the lives of many and truly was an outstanding role model."

The winners were chosen by a special committee based on nominations from the member schools. They received a plaque as part of the Association's student services program.

Coaches receiving this honor for 2008-09 include the following:

Region 1: Marie Lewis, J.H. Rose HS, DREAM Team & SASI Coach

Region 2: Charles Davis, Charles B. Aycock HS, athletic director and head baseball coach

Region 3: Art Medlin, South Johnston HS, men's indoor and outdoor track coach

Region 4: Paul Hodges, Lumberton HS, head baseball coach

Region 5: Steven Davis, Dudley HS, head football coach

Region 6: Chris Norman, Shelby HS, head football coach and athletic director

Region 7: David Craft, Hickory HS, head baseball coach and assistant football coach

Region 8: Robert Strong, Hendersonville HS, head men's basketball coach

Each school had the opportunity to nominate one of its coaches for this award. "These coaches provide excellent role models with their positive approach," says Adams.

North Carolina Farm Bureau Mutual Insurance Company underwrites the recognition for high school coaches. ★

160 NCHSAA Schools Are Ejection Free For 2008-09 Year

CHAPEL HILL—The North Carolina High School Athletic Association announced today that 160 member schools in the NCHSAA were ejection free during the 2008-09 school year.

The schools were recognized at the Association's recently completed regional meetings held across the state. There were a total of 381 member schools in the NCHSAA last year.

Mark Dreibelbis, assistant executive director of the NCHSAA and director of the Association's Student Services Division, noted that the number of schools that were ejection free was up by 34 from a year ago. A total of 125 schools were ejection free in 2007-08, which represented a decline from a whopping 202 schools, the all-time record, which were ejection free in the 2006-07 academic year. A total of 165 schools went ejection free during the 2005-06 year with 169 in 2004-05. The totals include 157 in 2003-04 and 149 schools in 2002-03.

The trend generally had been steadily upward since the inception of the program. There were 114 ejection-free schools during the 2001-2002 year and 92 schools were ejection free in both 2000-01 and 1999-2000. A total of 82 schools were ejection-free in 1998-99, and 75 schools went without an ejection during the 1997-98 year. The guidelines record ejections for unsportsmanlike acts such as fighting, taunting, profanity, obscene gestures or disrespectfully addressing or contacting officials.

"We are certainly pleased to recognize these schools for their positive programming," said Dreibelbis. "It is part of our continuing commitment to provide opportunities and recognize schools which are promoting the kind of behavior we want to see as part of a wholesome athletic environment."

All schools with no ejections for the year received a certificate of recognition at the recently completed NCHSAA regional meetings across the state. North Carolina Farm Bureau sponsors this as part of its initiative with the NCHSAA.

Roy Turner Earns Prestigious National Award From NIAAA

INDIANAPOLIS, IN—Roy Turner, CMAA, athletic director at Ashley High School in Wilmington, is the 2009 recipient of the Frank Kovaleski Professional Development Award presented by the National Interscholastic Athletic Administrators Association (NIAAA).

Turner will receive his award in December in Dallas, Texas, during banquet festivities at the 40th annual National Athletic Directors Conference conducted jointly by the National Federation of State High School Associations (NFHS) and the NIAAA.

The Frank Kovaleski Professional Development Award is presented each year to an NIAAA member who possesses and has contributed to the vision of professional development – the legacy of Frank Kovaleski – and who has made significant contributions and demonstrated excellence in professional development at the local, state and national levels. Kovaleski was director of the NIAAA, as well as assistant director of the NFHS, from 1989 until his retirement in 2005. He was responsible for starting the NIAAA Leadership Training Program in 1996 and expanding the NIAAA Certification Program in 1999.

Turner, athletic director at Ashley High School since 2006, is known for his leadership at the county, state and national levels. Prior to joining Ashley, Turner was athletic director at Southeast Guilford High School in Greensboro for eight years and athletic director at Dudley High School in Greensboro for three years. He also has coached baseball and football at the junior high and high school levels.

At Southwest Guilford, Turner hosted numerous sectional and regional events for the North Carolina High School Athletic Association and served as chairperson of the NCHSAA Sectional Basketball Committee in 1997. Turner is also an accomplished official, having officiated high school volleyball and basketball, as well as college basketball. He has officiated five NCHSAA state basketball championships.

Turner has been a member of the North Carolina Athletic Directors

Association (NCADA) since 1995, serving as secretary-treasurer, vice president, president and as a member of the Executive Board of Directors. Turner is also active in the NCADA Leadership Training Program as a member of its Leadership Training Teaching Faculty. In addition, he developed the organization's Professional Development Plan and maintains its Web site.

In 2004, Turner was the recipient of both the NCADA State Award of Merit and the NCADA Distinguished Service Award for meritorious service. Earlier this year, he was recognized as Athletic Director of the Year by both the NCADA and the NCHSAA.

At the national level, Turner has made enormous contributions to the NIAAA Leadership Training Program. A 10-year NIAAA member, Turner is currently on the NIAAA Leadership Training National Faculty and has taught LTC 710 at the national conference from 2002 to 2008. He also has taught four other courses at the national conference since 2007. Turner also has been involved in the development and implementation of three new technology courses and is working on multiple formats for the 2009 national conference in Dallas.

Turner has taken 29 different LTC courses offered by the NIAAA and has taught or assisted with 18 courses in North Carolina. He instructed the first online professional development in April 2009 through Virginia State University. Turner is a member of the NIAAA Publications Committee, presented a workshop at the 2005 national conference and served as North Carolina's representative to the NIAAA Delegate Assembly four times. In addition, he is a member of the NIAAA-National Association of Sport and Physical Education (NASPE) Interscholastic Athletics Recognition Program and the third NIAAA Strategic Planning Committee.

Turner earned his bachelor's degree in 1979 from East Carolina University and his master's from North Carolina A&T University in 1985. In 2006, he was the recipient of the NFHS Citation. ★

Advertisers Help Make NCHSAA Championship Programs Successful

Whether it is at the local high school level, in a collegiate program, the professional ranks—or with the North Carolina High School Athletic Association—advertisers are critical to the success of a souvenir game program.

The NCHSAA has been able to produce outstanding championship programs in a number of different sports over the years, largely because of good support from corporate sponsors and from Chapel Hill, Carrboro and the surrounding area. The books feature not only up-to-date information about the championship participants and lots of copy about special NCHSAA programs and activities, but they include advertisements for these supporting companies.

The Association wishes to salute those advertisers, whose ads you will be seeing in championship publications throughout the year, and we certainly hope you will take advantage of their goods and services when appropriate.

The list includes both NCHSAA corporate sponsors, who also have ads in the programs, along with others who are just advertising and supporting the Association in that way. At press time for the Bulletin, the 2009-10 championship program advertisers include:

NCHSAA Coach-Captain Retreat Attracts Students From Across State

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK— The North Carolina High School Athletic Association held its fall 2009 Coach-Captain Retreat in early October, the 29th in the history of this program.

The event, part of the Association's Student Services program, was held at the Radisson RTP and attracted students from all over North Carolina.

Retreat teams include student-athletes who will be captains or leaders of their athletic squads in the coming year, a coach from the school and a parent representative. They are designed to promote the concept of "teamwork." Issues such as leadership development, alcohol, tobacco and other drugs, violence prevention strategies and academic success are addressed at these retreats, the first of which was held in the spring of '95.

The retreats are designed to help student-athletes define leadership qualities, identify key issues that affect them, learn to communicate effectively with other students and adults about these issues, and then to understand what captains can do to use their influence to prevent problems and promote healthy lifestyles.

Coach-Captain retreats are organized and administered by NCHSAA assistant executive director Mark Dreibelbis and student services assistant Chiquana Dancy.

"Student Services is the 'value-added' division of the NCHSAA," said Dreibelbis. "The Coach/Captain Retreat emphasizes the responsibility of student-athletes to take their leadership skills and implement programs promoting positive life skills and total development through athletics to both their school and community. Having the opportunity to develop these initiatives and assist in their implementation is what Student Services is all about. Our programs make a difference and create winners for life."

Facilitators included the following NCHSAA Student Services Trainers: Mike Brown, retired athletic director from the New Hanover County schools and president of B&M Associates; P.J. Taylor, retired teacher/coach at Williamston High and former safe and drug free schools coordinator for the Martin County Schools; Teresa Coleman, former coach and athletic director at West Bladen High School; Faye Corbin, teacher and coach at Hope Mills South View High School; and Susan Cox, former athletic director at Perquimans High School.

Teams always conclude their retreat experience by developing an action plan, something that can be taken back and executed in their local school. Among the components of the action plan could be bulletin boards in the school, public service announcements for the school intercom, a community service project, a special newsletter for student-athletes or other school/community ideas generated by the team itself.

In addition to the staff, there were 108 participants in the retreat, with a total of 78 student-athletes and 30 adults attending. The adult total included 18 coaches or administrators, representing a total of 16 different schools, and 12 parents of athletes.

Teams at the retreat represented the following schools:

Alexander Central, Matthews David Butler, Fayetteville Douglas Byrd, Carrboro, Greenville D.H. Conley, Charlotte Independence, Jordan-Matthews, Kings Mountain, Northwest Guilford, Jamestown Ragsdale, Pfaf own Ronald Reagan, South Brunswick, Hope Mills South View, Southeast Halifax, Tarboro and Weldon. ★

Record Turnouts For Regional Meetings Across North Carolina

CHAPEL HILL—For the 38th consecutive year, the North Carolina High School Athletic Association held its regional meetings across the state in September.

For a two-week span, the NCHSAA took to the road to hold meetings in each of the eight NCHSAA regions. This year's schedule called for meetings to be held in the Western regions during the first week and the meetings in the East the following week.

A total of 1,084 attended the eight meetings, the second-most in the history of regional events.

NCHSAA executive director Charlie Adams, deputy executive director Que Tucker, assistant executive director for development Karen DeHart and assistant executive director Carolyn Shannonhouse made the full tour, with other staff members joining them at specific locations.

A member of the NCHSAA Board of Directors from that specific region served as chairperson for the meeting.

The meetings included updates on NCHSAA sports regulations, eligibility rules, question and answer sessions, presentation of awards and other items.

Principals and athletic directors of NCHSAA member schools, along with superintendents or other central office personnel who work with athletics, are among the administrators who attend the meetings.

The representatives of the North Carolina Coaches Association and the North Carolina Athletic Directors Association from the particular region also presented reports, and awards were given in several different categories in each region.

For the past nine years overall attendance at the regional meetings has been well over 900 annually.

The total attendance for the 2008 meetings was a record 1,223, while attendance at the 2007 meetings exceeded 1,000 at 1,079. The 2006 attendance fell just short of 1,000 at 994 and the 2005 total was 937.

Interns Enjoying Fall Semester In NCHSAA Offices

CHAPEL HILL—Another excellent group of students is working during the fall semester in the intern program sponsored by the North Carolina High School Athletic Association.

Interns customarily work six to eight hours a week as volunteers in the NCHSAA offices in addition to their regular academic load. They assist in everything from clerical duties to research on NCHSAA records to helping with Association publications and working at selected state championships.

New interns from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill have been working at the NCHSAA during the fall semester. The new interns include:

—Benjamin Reid, a UNC graduate who majored in exercise and sports science and is from Coral Gables, Florida, where he played basketball at Palmer Trinity School

In addition, there are interns who are UNC students who are working in the development department at the NCHSAA. They include:

—Susie Wear, a graduate of Salisbury High School who was a three-sport standout there and earned the Clary Medal from the NCHSAA at the 2008 Annual Meeting

For the last several years, an intern in the NCHSAA offices has coordinated, at the request of Wachovia, the Wachovia Conference Cup program. This year Wes Strunk, a sophomore at UNC, is working with that program. Wes was a soccer player at Chapel Hill High School and is currently a political science/music double major at UNC.

The NCHSAA began its intern program back in 1988. Since then almost 300 students, both undergraduate and graduate, from several different colleges and universities have worked at the Association. About two-thirds have come from Association member schools.

NCHSAA interns have gone on to a variety of graduate schools or occupations, including coaching and teaching, sports information, collegiate athletic administration, professional baseball umpiring and business, to name a few. Rick Strunk coordinates the general intern program. ★

Top Coaching Marks Listed As Reported By Schools

Each school in the North Carolina High School Athletic Association is required to complete a School Information Sheet on line, and this document contains a lot of facts and figures about each of the NCHSAA's 386 member schools. This information is used in a variety of ways, including entries in the NCHSAA Directory, information on how many schools play which sports, and the listing of coaches' career records.

Association intern Benjamine Reid did an outstanding job going through the on-line school information submissions, compiling these lists and following up with phone calls or faxes to clarify where necessary. The following lists are not intended to be comprehensive or complete, but are based on schools themselves submitted in the on line system

We have taken care to make this list as accurate as possible. These records are for active coaches only, and if a coach at your school or in your area is not listed, it is probably because the records were not submitted. If there are additions or corrections, please let us know because we want it to be as accurate as possible.

We appreciate all those schools which take the time to submit the information, and we appreciate the efforts of our interns to do the research.

We are glad to recognize these outstanding teachers and coaches from across the state of North Carolina.
